Secrets of the Dead: Vampire Legend

Premieres Tuesday, October 27, 9-10 p.m. on PBS (check local listings)

Film Interviewees
(in alphabetical order)

Marina Andronache, journalist who investigated vampire-slaying ritual in Romania in 2004

John Blair, professor of medieval history at The Queen’s College, University of Oxford

Dr. Matteo Borrini, forensic anthropologist at Liverpool John moores University, who found remains of what medieval Venetians believed to be a vampire

Dr. Lindsey Fitzharris, historian of medicine and medieval disease at Queen Mary, University of London

Ian Meadows, archaeologist who excavated numerous Anglo-Saxon graves with the Museum of London Archaeology (MOLA)
Mirca Mitrica, modern-day vampire slayer

Nikolay Ovcharov, professor who, in 2014, discovered the bones of two bodies dating back to a time when the plague first hit Bulgaria

Dominic Powlesland, archaeologist and director of the Landscape Research Centre in Yorkshire, England

Dr. Stuart Prior, archaeologist at University of Bristol, who has spent years excavating Anglo-Saxon graveyards

Andrew Reynolds, professor of medieval archeology at University College London, and an expert on Anglo-Saxon burials

Dacre Stoker, author and great-grandnephew of Bram Stoker (author of Dracula)

Dr. Anna Williams, forensic scientist at University of Huddersfield in England, who is an expert on what happens to a corpse post-mortem

###

Final 09.29.15