The globetrotting classical music series returns with host Scott Yoo.

Fri Sept 18th-Oct 2nd, 9 p.m.
MUSICAL JOURNEYS

AS BROADWAY THEATERS and other performing arts venues remain closed due to the pandemic, arts lovers everywhere are exhaling a collective sigh of despair. Great Performances is here to lift your spirits with the sumptuous ballet film Romeo and Juliet (Fri 11th, 9 p.m.) and a new season of the globetrotting classical music series Now Hear This (Fri Sept 18th-Oct 2nd, 9 p.m.).

Now Hear This, which premiered on Great Performances in 2019, invites viewers to travel the world with virtuoso violinist Scott Yoo, Chief Conductor and Artistic Director of the Mexico City Philharmonic, as he chases the secret histories of classical music masterpieces in this miniseries that merges music, storytelling, travel, and culture.

Each episode focuses on a great composer, tracing the creation and lasting impact of their masterpieces while exploring little known or recently discovered works and new music they inspired. In Series 2, join the Maestro as he meets acclaimed virtuosos, local musicians, music historians, and other charismatic characters on his travels through North America and Europe, connecting the classics to the contemporary—and enjoying the culture along the way.

Yoo describes the series as “Anthony Bourdain meets classical music.” The first episode, Haydn: King of Strings (Fri 18th, 9 p.m.), follows Yoo and guest artists as they discover how composer Joseph Haydn borrowed folk music from Scotland, Hungary, and Austria to create his famous “Emperor Quartet.”

Celebrate the work of Franz Schubert with Yoo and promising young musicians in The Schubert Generation (Fri 25th, 9 p.m.).

In Becoming Mozart (Fri Oct 2nd, 9 p.m.), Yoo and pianist Stewart Goodyear visit Yoo’s Festival Mozaic in California, where Goodyear directs an orchestra from the piano while improvising Mozart solos.

A fourth episode on Beethoven will air in 2021.

Also this month on Great Performances, dance aficionados won’t want to miss Romeo and Juliet (Fri 11th, 9 p.m.). The Royal Ballet’s William Bracewell and Francesca Hayward portray Shakespeare’s star-crossed lovers in this “vibrant and sublime” (The Guardian) film version of choreographer Kenneth MacMillan’s ballet, set to Prokofiev’s famous score and filmed on atmospheric sets and locations in Budapest.

Great Performances: Now Hear This and Romeo and Juliet will be available to stream following each broadcast via the Great Performances website (pbs.org/gperf) and the THIRTEEN Explore app (thirteen.org/explore). Join the conversation on social media using the hashtag #GreatPerformancesPBS.

Major funding for Great Performances is provided by The Joseph and Robert Cornell Memorial Foundation, the Anna-Maria and Stephen Kellen Arts Fund, Rosalind P. Walter, the Irene Diamond Fund, the LuEsther T. Mertz Charitable Trust, Seton J. Melvin, the Kate W. Cassidy Foundation, Jody and John Amhold, The Starr Foundation, The Philip and Janice Levin Foundation, The Teva Petschek Iervolino Foundation, The Lewis “Sonny” Turner Fund for Dance, Ellen and James S. Marcus, public television viewers and PBS.

City of Joel
Tue 1st, 9:25 p.m.

FIFTY MILES NORTH of New York City, in the town of Monroe, the village of Kiryas Joel is home to one of the country’s fastest-growing Hasidic communities. When a plan is created to expand the village to keep up with its population growth, it sparks a turf war with their secular neighbors. Hear from people on all sides of the conflict, from religious zealots to dissidents, from rabbis to those questioning their own faith.
