TULSA: THE FIRE AND THE FORGOTTEN

MON 31ST, 9 P.M.

Inside the Met

Fri 21st, 9 p.m. and 10 p.m.; Fri 28th, 9 p.m.

Experience the Metropolitan Museum of Art's 150th birthday year amid the COVID-19 pandemic and calls for social justice.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AFTER THE TULSA RACE MASSACRE OF 1921, A COMMUNITY COMES TO TERMS WITH ITS PAST, PRESENT, AND FUTURE.

RECLAIMING HISTORY

TULSA: THE FIRE AND THE FORGOTTEN

Mon 31st, 9 p.m.

ONE OF THE WORST INCIDENTS of racial violence in American history occurred 100 years ago, from May 31 to June 1, 1921, when a mob of white residents set fire to “Black Wall Street,” an affluent Black community in the Greenwood district of Tulsa, Oklahoma. Known as the Tulsa Race Massacre, this act of anti-Black violence destroyed hundreds of Black-owned businesses and homes, killing an estimated 100-300 Black residents, and leaving an estimated 10,000 Black residents homeless.

This explosion of racial terror was compounded by the silence that followed. No one was punished for the crimes, and history textbooks often made no reference to them—even in Oklahoma—so many Americans are still unaware of this history.

Tulsa: The Fire and the Forgotten, a new documentary, examines this deadly assault on the 100th anniversary of the crime in the context of other racial massacres and police killings—including the one-year anniversary of the killing of George Floyd—and through the stories of people connected to the massacre.

DeNeen L. Brown (pictured), a Washington Post journalist and Oklahoma native who has been reporting on the Tulsa massacre and the city's efforts to uncover mass graves, interviews descendants of Greenwood residents and business owners and today's community activists about the city's 2018 decision to search for mass graves from 1921, community demands for reparations, and current efforts to revive the Black district of Greenwood through education, technology, business development, and more.

The documentary explores issues of atonement, reconciliation, and reparation in the past, present, and future through the historical lens of white violence and Black resistance, featuring interviews with civil rights activists, lawyers, and Black community leaders including Greg Robinson II; Kristi Williams; and Regina Goodwin, Oklahoma State Representative—Tulsa House District 73. Eric Stover, founder of the Human Rights Center at University of California, Berkeley School of Law, speaks with Tulsa natives and surveys the current excavation and search for mass graves.

“What happened in Tulsa in 1921 was a horrible atrocity, and for nearly 100 years, it was covered up. It was left out of textbooks. Many survivors did not talk about it. Many survivors only whispered about it,” DeNeen L. Brown says in the film.

As the City of Tulsa commemorates the 100th anniversary of the massacre, Tulsa: The Fire and the Forgotten gives voice to this often overlooked chapter of history.

Tulsa: The Fire and the Forgotten will be available to stream following the broadcast on thirteen.org and via the THIRTEEN Explore app (thirteen.org/explore).

Funding for Tulsa: The Fire and the Forgotten is provided in part by The Derfner Foundation, A. W. Fong, Joseph and Diane Steinberg, Carolyn Patty Blum, Darian Swig, Neal and Ashley Robin, the Albert A. Robin Family Foundation, and Craig Mowry. Additional funding is provided by Chasing the Dream, a WNET initiative made possible by The JPB Foundation and The Peter G. Peterson and Joan Ganz Cooney Fund, and by PBS.

AMERICAN MASTERS—AMY TAN: UNINTENDED MEMOIR

WRITER AMY TAN'S hit debut novel, The Joy Luck Club (1989), catapulted her to commercial and critical success, spending over 40 weeks on The New York Times Best Seller list. With the 1993 blockbuster film adaptation that followed, as well as additional bestselling novels, librettos, short stories, and memoirs, Tan firmly established herself as one of the most prominent and respected literary voices working today.

American Masters tells the inspiring story of Tan's life and career in Amy Tan: Unintended Memoir, premiering in honor of Asian Pacific American Heritage Month.

The last completed film from director James Redford (1962-2020)—Tan's close friend and the son of Robert Redford—the intimate portrait features archival home movies, personal photographs, and animation, as well as new interviews with Tan; fellow writers Kevin Kwan, Isabel Allende, Dave Barry, and Ronald Bass; actors from The Joy Luck Club including Lisa Lu, Rosalind Chao, Tamlyn Tomita, and Kieu Chinh; friends and family.

Tan speaks frankly about traumas she has faced in her life and how her writing has helped her heal. Born to Chinese immigrant parents in Oakland, California in 1952, it would be decades before she fully understood how her mother's battle with suicidal tendencies was rooted in a legacy of suffering common to women who survived the ancient Chinese tradition of concubinage. This legacy provides Tan an inexhaustible well of creative inspiration, and her work—including her other bestselling novels The Kitchen God's Wife and The Bonesetter's Daughter—has made her a global icon for Asian Americans.

Highlights of the film—which enjoyed a successful world premiere at the 2021 Sundance Film Festival—also include footage of Tan performing as the lead singer of the Rock Bottom Remainers, a band featuring Stephen King, Scott Turow, and Dave Barry, and a look at her recent explorations in nature journal sketching.

American Masters—Amy Tan: Unintended Memoir will stream following the broadcast on pbs.org/mytan and the THIRTEEN Explore app (thirteen.org/explore).

Support for American Masters is provided by AARP, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, Cheryl & Philip Milstein Family, Judith & Burton Resnick, Seton Melvin Charitable Trust, The Blanche & Irving Laurie Foundation, The Ambrose Monell Foundation, Vital Projects Fund, Lillian Goldman Programming Endowment, Philip & Janice Levin Foundation, Ellen & James S. Marcus, The André & Elizabeth Kertész Foundation and public television viewers.
