CELEBRATE WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH WITH US
TRAILBLAZING WOMEN

AS THE FIRST WOMAN to be appointed as music director of a major symphony (Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, 2007), conductor Marin Alsop is a musical pioneer. Born into a musical family in New York, Alsop set her sights on becoming a conductor at nine years old while accompanying her father to one of Leonard Bernstein’s “Young People’s Concerts.” Despite repeated rejection by the classical music establishment, Alsop never let go of her dream.

Great Performances spotlights this remarkable musical trailblazer in the new documentary The Conductor (Fri 25th, 9 p.m.; pbs.org/gperf), premiering on THIRTEEN in honor of Women’s History Month.

Accompanied by a soundtrack of her performances, the documentary tells Alsop’s story through intimate interviews, encounters with musicians and music world experts, never-before-seen archival footage with her mentor Leonard Bernstein, and cinema vérité scenes of Alsop conducting some of the world’s great orchestras and teaching the next wave of conductors who, like her, were excluded from the classical music canon.

Great Performances salutes another extraordinary woman in the arts as Lily Tomlin (Laugh-In, 9 to 5, Grace and Frankie) receives the esteemed Career Achievement Award on Movies for Grownups Awards With AARP The Magazine (Fri 18th, 9 p.m; pbs.org/gperf). Alan Cumming hosts the awards honoring the best films and performances of 2021 that resonate with older viewers.

Additional Women’s History Month premieres include Great Performances at the Met: Eurydice (Sun 13th, 12 p.m.; pbs.org/gperf), hosted by Renée Fleming. Composer Matthew Aucoin’s new opera, adapted from Sarah Ruhl’s play, reimagines the Greek Orpheus myth from Eurydice’s point of view. Yannick Nézet-Séguin conducts with new staging by Mary Zimmerman. Soprano Erin Morley sings the title role, opposite baritone Joshua Hopkins as Orpheus.

Call the Midwife (Sun Mar 20th-May 8th, 8 p.m.) kicks off its eleventh season on a festive note with an Easter Bonnet parade and the Eurovision song contest. Bring Her Home (Mon 21st, 10 p.m.) follows three Indigenous women—an artist, an activist, and a politician—as they vindicate their missing and murdered relatives, and strive to find healing and hope for their community.

Independent Lens: Writing With Fire (Mon 28th, 10 p.m.) profiles the fearless journalists of Khabar Lahariya (“News Wave”), India’s only all-female newspaper, who cover the news from a women-powered perspective.

American Masters (pbs.org/americanmasters) encores Rita Moreno (Tue 8th, 8 p.m.), Amy Tan (Fri 11th, 9 p.m.), and How It Feels to Be Free (Tue 22nd, 9 p.m.). Enjoy another returning favorite: Betty White: First Lady of Television (Fri 4th, 9 p.m.).
